Patty Kovacs, MS RD CD has been a First Steps dietitian for 13 years. Her success in working with families has proven the invaluable nature of nutrition education for families. You will come away from this training with a clear understanding of how nutrition intervention improves progress with other therapies, a profound hands-on learning experience for yourself, and new techniques and protocols to improve client/patient outcomes.

Objectives:

1. Understand the importance of communication and meeting the family “where they are”.
2. Identify the family’s top three concerns and start the process of initiating changes and nutrition interventions.
3. Understand why parents are so concerned about weight and how to calculate basic energy needs for a variety of children.
4. Assess factors contributing to feeding struggles and implement the Division of Responsibility in Feeding as outlined by Ellyn Satter, RD.
5. Outline, in easy to understand terms, the gut and the impact of gut health on feedings, behaviors, and progress in other areas of life.
6. Discuss nutrients missing in today’s “modern diet” and possible supplementation ideas to improve overall nutrient intakes.

All participants who attend the conference will receive a Manual which includes specific, in depth educational materials for the provider, as well as family friendly information that can be copied and shared as needed.
