

HEALTH

NJ program offers free mental health services for the uninsured

Staff report MyCentralJersey.com

May 3, 2025, 4:01 a.m. ET

With mental health challenges across New Jersey on the rise and access to affordable care difficult, especially for uninsured individuals, CenterPath Wellness (CPW), an affiliated counseling service of Easterseals New Jersey, is partnering with NJMHAPPs, a state-funded initiative, to offer select no-cost mental health services to uninsured New Jersey residents.

Through this partnership, CenterPath Wellness is providing coverage for core services such as individual, group, and family therapy, psychiatric evaluations, medication and injection management, partial care services, and case management for those with serious mental illness.

These services are available in-person at CPW's Plainfield office or via telehealth.

“We are beyond grateful for this opportunity to broaden our reach and help more individuals on their path to wellness,” stated Dae’Quawn Landrum, AVP of Community Health. “This funding empowers us to offer high-quality, compassionate care to more people who need it but can’t afford it.”

More: Advice, resources for parents of children with mental health issues

CenterPath Wellness is currently accepting new patients. Uninsured individuals seeking mental health services are encouraged to call to confirm service availability and eligibility.

For more information, contact CenterPath Wellness at 908-756-6870 or visit www.mycenterpath.org.

Established in 1944, CenterPath Wellness is a nonprofit community mental health clinic dedicated to providing mental health, addiction, and behavioral health services throughout Union County and statewide via telehealth.