Why would you order a Driver Assessment?

If you are documenting a loss in sensation, a change in cognition, a loss of mobility, a history of falls, vision changes, and/or a combination of these, your patient may be having some difficulty behind the wheel.

What is the benefit of a CDRS completing a driver assessment?

CDRS is a nationally recognized credential for driver rehab. A CDRS provides a comprehensive, objective, and research based assessment that includes a clinical assessment of the physical, visual, and cognitive skills required to drive as well as a behind the wheel assessment. The CDRS also has a medical background to be able to understand the diagnosis of the client and how that diagnosis could affect the client's driving in the future. The CDRS can assist the physician to ensure that the client and other people on the road remain safe.

Why is it important to follow through on recommendations made after a driver assessment?

When a client is referred for a driver assessment, it is typically due to concerns that the physician and/or the family have. If it is recommended that a client no longer drive and the client continues to drive and gets into an accident, the patient and other people on the road are being placed at risk.
