Honorees to be recognized for their dedication to the Easterseals New Jersey mission include: the Asmar Family (Monsignor Maroun Asmar, Mary Smith, and Paul Asmar), Continuous Commitment Award; Interlink Products International Inc., Customer of the Year; and Walmart North Brunswick, Employer of the Year. Additionally, program participants, Joseph Clements, Ronald Caroll, Saamin Hardman, and Kimberly Paitakis will receive Employee of the Year recognition for their exemplary work performance and commitment to excellence.

"Our program participants bring an immense amount of pride to the work that they do," says Brian Fitzgerald, CEO and president of Easterseals New Jersey. "Employment provides them with a rewarding opportunity to contribute to society, while employers benefit from a loyal and hard-working workforce. It's a win-win situation!"

The local community is encouraged to show their support by purchasing tickets to the event for $135 per person. Donations of auction items for the fundraising event are also needed. Corporate tables and advertising opportunities are available.

About the Raritan Valley Workshop

The Easterseals Raritan Valley Workshop has supported individuals on their road to independence since 1967 by promoting employment resources and opportunities for adults with disabilities. Easterseals job training and employment services help people with disabilities develop skills to successfully enter the workforce and independently earn an income.

The lives of many individuals with disabilities are positively impacted by the employment opportunities presented to them through a flow of sub-contract work handling packaging and fulfillment services for area businesses. Recent cuts in funding for social service programs means the employment center now has to rely even more heavily on subcontract work in order to keep its participants employed.

About Easterseals New Jersey

Annually, nearly 9,000 people or families in New Jersey affected by developmental disabilities, including autism, physical disabilities, mental illness and other special needs participate in our programs designed to help them address life's challenges and achieve their personal goals.
